

Economics is a study of mankind in the ordinary business of life . “ so wrote Alferd Marshall, the great 19th-century economist,in his textbook, principles of economics . Although we have learned such about the economic since Marshall’s time , this definition of economics is as true today as it was in 1890 , when first edition of his tweet was published.

